Strawhat Tryouts

The Automobile Man, Calder Willingham's new play tested at Bucks County, Pa, Playhouse, was panned by Dash, Women's Wear, and Henry, Variety, as an unlikely Broadway bet in its present shape. Chief trouble, trade paper critic notes, is that it is unfunny. Script lacks focus, sums up Dash...The Vegetable, F. Scott Fitzgerald's comedy starring Wally Cox, would stand scant chance of survival without the TV comic, even on the strawhat circuit, reports Elie-Variety, who viewed it at Marblehead, Mass...Without consent, Jack Perry's new comedy which debuted at Sturbridge, Mass, is a frothy comedy complete with sharp dialogue, okayed Geor, Variety.

Hits Revisited

Tea and Sympathy seen a second time confirms the original impression of Atkinson, Times, that author is lucky in his director and actors. In a commonplace performance it might be a morbid piece, instead of a study of the tyranny of the mass mind over two sensitive people. Joan Fontaine gives a forceful and thoughtful performance, Anthony Perkins makes his role touching...Teahouse of the August Moon is still a delightful show, sums up Hobo, Variety. It is a boxoffice natural that has kept remarkable fresh and refreshing...Oh Men, Oh Women's cast changes have not affected the funny comedy which turns out to be a natural for the summer dog days, reports Jess, Variety. Lloyd Bridges in lead, seems a bit stiff.

Summer Material Dearth

There is not enough new material produced in the summer theatres, complains WNBC Critic at Large, Leon Pearson. The trend is toward commercial packages, productions wrapped up in NY and delivered at the door, for a fixed price. The price of the package may be high, but the sharp men of the business, such as Lee Falk and Don Wolin, know the contents will be professional stuff. Wolin's package of The Little Hut, with Barbara Bel Geddes and Hiram Sherman, which Pearson saw at Matunuck, RI, was better than the Broadway production.

Three Tasteful Strawhats

John Drew Theatre, East Hampton, NY, Newport, RI, Casino and Spring Lake, NJ Ivy Tower Playhouse are the three most tasteful intimate houses of the summer circuit, rates Coleman, Mirror.

WATCHDOG CRITICS...Reviewers worthy of the name are never satisfied until authors, actors and composers are giving their very best to the public, states "Stage" editorial. The second best is not good enough, and the genuine critic will not let it pass without comment to the effect that there is room for improvement. Critics, British tradepaper urges, should be the watchdogs who insist that artists never walk through a performance as though each new play should be as good, if not better, than the author's previous.

COLUMN TIPS...Paul Valentine is going to protest to Equity against Sheila Bond who hit him in the chest during a performance of Wish You Were Here in Pittsburgh recently, reports O'Connor, Journal American...Michael Meyerberg's puppet film production "Hansel and Gretel" will book the Winter Garden, Hears Kilgallen...Union Lima Savings Bank, 6th & 40th, is hunting for Frederick Sumner Logan, aids Francis, Billboard, who has had a sum of money awaiting claim for 15 years.

LONDON'S BAD-GOOD PLAYS...Going to a second rate, trashy play in London is an experience the NY playgoer cannot do, notes Kerr, Herald Tribune. Seeing a play like Agatha Christie's Witness for the Prosecution provides a casual, undemanding, irresponsible, and smiatle evening of theatre. It is an experience, critic believes, exactly comparable to settling down for the evening with any detective novel you happen to fancy. You know you are settling for trash, but it just so happens that you want to give an evening to trash.

CRITICAL THOUGHTS...Summer on Broadway was so dull for awhile, complains Coleman, Mirror, that a drama reporter couldn't even pick up a good rumor...99% of a first night audience would rather return to the 8 30 first night curtain, remarks Chapman, News, an arch foe of the 8 PM debuts...After viewing several scenes of the "Moby Dick" film on location in Ireland, Watts, Post, has high hopes for the John Huston production.

INTERVIEW HI-LITES...Entertainment is the reason audiences love Kismet, Alfred Drake told Morehouse, World Telegram & Sun. Audiences like the color and bigness of it all, and the carefully undressed young ladies. He knows they like the music and he thinks they like him. Actor believes musi... much better than most realize. Drake planes to take a vacation in Jan a... go to London next spring to repeat his leading role.

! Pros & Cons by TMK !

Commercial tie-ins may be the salvation of the theatre. The publicity tie-in between Park and Tilford and the forthcoming Champagne Complex may at first read like a press agent's gag. Actually it does show the amount of interest which might be instilled in theatre if a little time and thought are given to original ideas. Certainly the liquid tie-in will have no effect on the play's success, but it will certainly help inform all those interested that there is such a play with the title Champagne Complex. The answer is not bigger and better commercial tie-ins, though some may not have the self control to say no. Instead it shows that there are more ways than are presently being used to get a given show known to a large potential audience. There may even be methods discovered which will insure the performances of what Walter Kerr calls "second rate plays." Entertainment, not perfection, will satisfy many in the theatre.

The four opening nights of Leslie Stevens' new play Champagne Complex will feature free champagne to first nighters served in special glassware with the play's title and a picture of the lead Patricia Smith. Aug 23 at Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope, Pa., is the first stop on the Alexander Cohen-Gaylord production. New York opening is scheduled for Oct 27, with other pre-Broadway stops at Hartford and Boston. A "Champagne Toot" bus junket which includes bus transportation to Bucks County, dinner at Monte Proser's Playhouse Inn, a ticket to the show, and the champagne has been scheduled for Aug 23 by Cohen.
